Making the Links

The Student Experience

The College of Medicine offers a unique service-learning elective program called Making the Links. Come hear students tell of their experiences in community health and development in the contexts of rural/remote health in a northern Saskatchewan community, at SWITCH (the student-run clinic in Saskatoon's core neighbourhoods), and in the Global South in Mozambique.

Friday, September 26th, 2008
12:30 p.m. – 1:30 p.m., A226 Health Sciences

This program will be of interest to anyone concerned with international health, service-learning, Aboriginal health, rural and remote health, community development and social accountability. It will be of particular interest to medical students who may wish to participate in this unique program. All are Welcome to Attend.
